

Laurie Kilmartin: Press

★★★★ "Kilmartin tackles taboos like she's had a couple of drinks before playing gridiron with little kids, and in a fresh and inventive way. Hopefully she'll come back next year. The Fringe will be the better for it." The Scotsman

"...she is technically the best comedian we've seen this year. She throws away lines most comedians would die for..."
The Herald, (UK)

★★★★"very funny indeed" The List, (UK)

"...I can't think of any female stand-up acts that are capable of covering the kind of areas that Laurie Kilmartin seemed at ease with. Her political edge had a pluckiness to it that was both honest and admirable..." The Media Underground, (UK)

"...remarkable poised crowd charmer, so strong now it's unbelievable..." San Francisco Chronicle

"...she has that star charisma that makes an audience warm to her the second she hits the stage..." Denver Post

"...she looks like the perky, wholesome girl next door, the quintessential cheerleader. But wait..."
Diablo Magazine

"...she has a certain exuberance for performing. The audience likes her immediately..." Contra Costa Times

"...hilarious and straight-forward..."Self Magazine

"Kilmartin had some good and sick baby material. We're used to the male perspective... but it's even sicker when the nurturing mother does it."
